

The bold heading in the Herald's story says "Final nod for Packer tower despite criticisms in report", but the report by the Planning Assessment Commission actually said "the proposed scale and form of Crown Sydney will be a sculptural and elegant signature building on the foreshore".

While the commission made some improvements to the public spaces around the building it is clear that it supported Crown Sydney as an elegant signature building and its location on the foreshore.

Chris Johnson chief executive officer, Urban Taskforce Australia